GARDENING TIPS FOR THE WINTER SEASON

With winter now upon us, gardens may appear to be settling into a season of rest; however, this is in fact one of the most rewarding and productive times of the year for gardening in the Western Cape. Winter marks the beginning of the planting season, making it the ideal opportunity to introduce winter-flowering annuals and prepare for the vibrant display of spring-flowering perennials.

As plants enter dormancy and sap flow slows, trees and shrubs naturally move into a period of rest and rejuvenation. This makes winter the perfect time for pruning after the final blooms have faded. Careful pruning not only helps maintain shape and structure, but also encourages healthy, vigorous growth in spring. In addition, pruning improves airflow and allows more sunlight to penetrate the garden - both essential for maintaining plant health during the colder months.

Residents are kindly requested to ensure that any trees growing along estate verges and extending over roadways are pruned to a minimum clearance height of 3.5 metres above ground level. This is necessary to ensure the safe and unobstructed passage of vehicles, including the Drakenstein refuse removal truck.

Winter also presents an excellent opportunity to remove old or tired groundcovers and refresh planting areas. Hardy indigenous perennials such as Gazania, Arctotis, Namaqua Daisy, Falkia (White Carpet), Felicia, and Plectranthus are all excellent choices, offering colour, texture, and resilience throughout the season.

With the arrival of the welcome winter rains, conditions are also ideal for planting trees and shrubs. Establishing these plants during winter allows them to develop strong root systems ahead of spring, ensuring healthier growth and greater resilience in the warmer months ahead.

DOMESTIC STAFF WALKING ACROSS THE GOLF COURSE

The HOA continues to receive complaints about residents' domestic staff walking across the golf course on their way to, and from, their places of work.

This not only interferes with play and detracts from the premium golfing experience expected by members and paying visitors, but also poses a risk of serious physical injury if someone is struck by a golf ball.

We appeal to residents to discuss this issue with your domestic staff and remind them that taking short-cuts across the golf course is not permitted, especially during playing hours.
